

2022/23 Great Books Readings

- 9/13/2022 Hekabe, by Euripides, (Great Conversations 5). 60 pages
- 9/27/2022 Selected Poems, by John Keats, (Great Conversations 5). 20 pages
- 10/11/2022 Masks, by George Santana, (Great Conversations 5). 20 pages
- 10/25/2022 *Philosophy and Knowledge, by Bertrand Russel, (Great Conversations 5)
- 11/15/2022 The Winter's Tale, William Shakespeare (Independent selection)
- 12/13/2022 The Autobiography of Malcolm X, by Malcolm X and Alex Haley, 200 pages
- 1/10/2023 Alice's Adventures in Wonderland, by Lewis Carroll, 192 pages
- 1/24/2023 Tragedy of the Commons, by Garrett Harden, (Keeping Things Whole)
- 2/14/2023 The Man Who Loved Islands, by D. H. Lawrence, (Great Conversations 5)
- 2/28/2023 Ethan Brand, by Nathaniel Hawthorn, (Great Conversations 5)
- 3/14/2023 Notes from Underground, by Fyodor Dostoyevsky. 136 pages, PDF available
- 3/28/2023 The End of Nature, by Bill McKibben, (Keeping Things Whole)
- 4/11/2023 Does Truth Matter, and related articles, by Carl Sagan, 19 pages, PDF available
- 4/25/2023 Snow Country by Yasunari Kawabata, PDF available, 175 pages
- 5/9/2023 Lust (Even Deadlier) 30 pages
Nuns at Luncheon, by Aldous Huxley
Cowboys Are My Weakness, by Pam Houston
- 5/23/2023 The Closing Circle, by Barry Commoner, (Keeping Things Whole)
- 6/13/2023 On Photography, essay series, by Susan Sontag, 174 pages, PDF available
- 6/27/2023 Recitatif, by Toni Morrison, 17 pages, PDF available

- 7/11/2023 Slouching Towards Bethlehem (essay 23 pages), by Joan Didion, PDF available
- 7/25/2023 Why Write?, by Jean-Paul Sartre, (Great Conversations 5)
- 8/8/2023 Sloth, (Even Deadlier) 32 pages
 Babylon Revisited, by F. Scott Fitzgerald
 The Custard Heart, by Dorothy Parker
- 8/22/2023 Anthropology and the Abnormal, by Ruth Benedict, (Great Conversations 5)

*Indicates a selection from a longer work.

Note: Great Conversations 5, Even Deadlier and Keeping Things Whole are compendia published by the Great Books Foundation and available from their website.